Your lawn mower just isn't cutting it. The washer's spin cycle is spinning out of control. Dishes come out of the dishwasher dirtier than they went in. Ahh . . . the joys of being a homeowner.

When an appliance doesn't work, we figure we have two options: an expensive repair or buying a new item.

But RepairClinic.com offers consumers another choice — step-by-step instructions to fix an appliance. The site offers troubleshooting and symptom guides to help diagnose the problem.

Once you figure it out, you can order a part through the site without parting with a lot of cash (many parts are under $20 and all carry a money-back guarantee). And RepairClinic.com's instructional videos will easily guide you through the repair.

So even though you're doing it yourself, you get plenty of help.
